So, I'm finishing my PhD this year at NUS which I started in 2011 and finished last year. I'm doing work in artificial intelligence and mainly focus on deep learning for natural language processing. As a self-taught programmer, I have spent a long time working alone to get to this point. As a PhD student, I thought it would be cool to share my work with people and get the help I need from the community to make sure it's complete and correct. I have a Google Arts & Culture project which I'm planning on making a presentation for (but I won't have a draft until the day before) and I've made a Github repo for it as I couldn't find any examples of Google's site. I've almost got the repository cleaned up, but I have no idea how to present things so I need some help. I'm a terrible speaker. I'm not naturally articulate and I tend to be quiet and to have to think about what I'm saying. I'm not sure if it's because I don't really know what to say or not or what not to say. When I come to speak, I feel like the hard work I put into writing, making slides and all that is kind of going to waste. So my question to you is: Should I just talk about what I'm doing at NUS? Should I do something visual to showcase the project? I've been looking at slideshare but I'm not really sure if it's suitable for my audience. Should I just do a poster? Can I do a poster? Or if I do a poster, should I make a presentation instead? Or should I just sit in front of the room, st b7e8fdf5c8

Kanto Karaoke Video Creator is a simple, yet powerful tool that allows you to create high-quality karaoke videos for uploading on dedicated websites or playing on karaoke stations. The program can easily convert karaoke files to videos with accurately synchronized sound and lyrics reading. Quickly transform karaoke files into videos Kanto Karaoke Video Creator can manage a specific type of files and supports several formats, including MIDI, KAR, KFN or MP3+G. They represent audio files with lyrics, rhythm and verse reading embedded in the metadata. The program can easily manage these files, read the information and translate it into a karaoke video. Kanto Karaoke Video Creator automatically performs the conversion and allows you to preview the clip while the process is active. However, it does not feature editing tools, which means that the videos are created based on the existing lyrics and you cannot apply corrections or otherwise modify them. The program allows you to set certain options regarding the output format, video quality and audio encoder. Easily set the output options Kanto Karaoke Video Creator can work with only one file at a time, but enables you to select the preferred output format (MP4, MKV, MPG, AVI, M2TS), depending on the platform you wish to play it on. You may set a preferred background picture or select one of the default images. The application allows you to select the desired video quality, ranging from standard definition, 240p, up to 1080p and even 4K. The frame per second rate can range from 24 up to 60 and you may also modify the font layout. Upload or play your karaoke videos Kanto Karaoke Video Creator facilitated the conversion of karaoke files to high-quality videos that you can play on multiple systems. For instance, you can easily play them on your computer, upload them to a hosting website or use them with dedicated karaoke machines. The program can generate high-quality output, with H.264/MPEG-4 AVC video encoding and MP3 codecs. What's new in this version: - Added support for displaying lyrics information. - Added support for displaying the background image. - Fixed a few bugs. Sometimes in my private practice I see patients who come for breast augmentation, breast lift or even implants to help correct breast asymmetries. Just recently, this patient was looking for a breast lift to enhance her breasts. She was a little on the older side for a breast lift and her breasts looked great. We began by discussing her goals for her breast lift

System Requirements:

The day's offerings are a bit of a mixed bag, and even a bit inconsistent. As you know, I'm less and less a fan of the "big" games, but every once in a while something great comes along, and it just feels a little bit too good to pass up. The one that I'm not at all happy about is Metro: Last Light. This is only because I generally like the Metro series, and this has not been one of their better outings. I just hope that this is a fluke, and not the beginning of the
